About me

I am currently pursuing my doctoral degree in Technology Management in the College of Engineering at UCSB. My research interests include the study of organizational behavior, design and innovation, team dynamics, diversity and inclusion, and the social implications of future technologies. Other areas of interest include the implications of AI driven decision-making in technological industries, costs of organizational change and disruption to innovation, and more broadly, exploring the direct and indirect effects of technology on tech-adjacent industries and job markets.
